Headquarters Will Be at Y. M. H. A. and First Session Will Be Aug. 29.

An item of interest to the Jewry of Memphis will be the Young Judean Interstate convention to be held in this city from August 29 to September 1st. Headquarters will be at the Y. M. H. A. Those cities having active representation other than Memphis are Chattanoga, Birmingham and Montgomery, these cities, it seems, having the most progressive Young Judean organizations in this immediate section.

This is the first convention of this character that has even been held in Memphis and it is due to the hard work and the initiative of the local organization that this city received the distinction.

The numposes of the convention will sation that this city received the distinction.

The purposes of the convention will be to get a ratrospective view of the past year's work with the idea of discerning the most important and beneficial features about it so that these features may be stressed and broadened during the ensuing year; and then to map out a course of endeavor for the coming year that will be most effective toward bringing to a successful conclusion the aims and the plans of the general Judean movement.

The opening feature of this convention will be a general mass meeting at the Y. M. H. A building, to be held Sunday evening, to which the public is invited. The evening will be featured by the speeches of the visiting delegates and several local addresses will be made, Harding Peres being one of the principal speakers. The program will be enlivened by a dash of music. Tha Young Judean club of Memphis has extended an invitation to all in the city interested in the Zionist cause and a good attendance is expected.

The University of West Tennessee Medical college opens Sept. 20. The school has done a good work under the leadership of Dr. M. V. Lynk, the president, and his associates. More than 250 graduates have been sent out who labor in 20 states and four foreign countries. It is stated that 23 per cent of the negro physicians in Memphis, 50 per cent of the dentists and 75 per cent of the trained nurses are graduates of this school.

The Baptist Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. convention is working on an apportionment of $17.152.20 in the big quarter-million drive. Rev. E. M. Seymore, of Knoxville, and L. C. Moore, of Momphis, have charge of the campaign. The reports are to be made at the state convention, which meets in Clarksville in October

The patrons of Carnes Avenue school and the citizens generally, will assist Prof. C. J. Neal, the principal, in his plan to erect a dining room, and provide general comfort facilities for the children, many of whose mothers are in service and must send the children very early. This is a very commendable effort.

Queen Anne Period

The dainty lines of grace found in the Queen Anne period are equally attractive in the small apartment or the spacious mansion. In a living room, bedroom or dining room, it adds that note of distinction so desirable in the modern home. The wood that is best fitted to the requirements of this period is walnut, although mahogany is often utilized as well as the various distinctive finishes in oak.

Characteristics of This Period

Cabriole legs, terminating in a claw and ball or with club, web or slipper feet are found on all Queen Anne period designs. The chief carved decoration is a cockle-shell located on the knees of chairs, settees and tables, as well as the backs of chairs, panels of buffets and other pieces. Queen Anne furniture seldom has stretchers or braces joining the legs. Chairs usually have a back as shown in the illustration to the left. Queen Anne furniture is genuinely comfortable, wonderfully beautiful in design and enduring in construction.

This advertisement is number two of a series of advertisements describing and illustrating the characteristics of the more popular periods. We invite your inspection of the actual furniture in all periods shown on our floors.
